

E. Goodman

From: mark taylor [marktayloruk@yahoo.com]
Sent: 18 April 2012 15:51
To: LETTERS@GUARDIAN.CO.UK
Cc: ALEXANDERBARON
Subject: INTERNET

I have been libelled on the Internet but still like the idea of it as a free speech democracy wall where we can all say whatever we like without legal penalty. The US First Amendment-free speech without qualification-should apply throughout the world. Which means that "antidemocratic extremists" should have as much right to express their opinions as good liberal moderate Guardianistas. I would rather uphold the freedom of dissenters than the authority of most governments.

Mark Taha
93 Venner Road
SE26 5HU
02086597713