

WHY HACKNEY COUNCIL CAN'T AFFORD TO GIVE YOUR KIDS A MOSLEM EDUCATION

Over the past few years, Islamic groups have accused the British state of racism because it has consistently refused to accord Moslem schools the same status as Christian and Jewish schools. The good news is that the British state is not guilty of the heinous crime of racism. The bad news is that the truth is far, far worse.

The reason the British state does not accord such status to Islamic schools is not because of prejudice against Moslems but because of a shortage of cash. The British state is short of cash because instead of subsidising Islamic schools it prefers to subsidise degenerates and those who incite the murders of policemen.

In the past two years, the London Borough of Hackney has donated over £300,000 of ratepayers' money to the Centerprise project in Kingsland High Street, whose bookshop openly stocks queer porn and anti-police hate literature. In the same period, this bookshop also received over £100,000 of taxpayers' money (from the London Arts Board) for the same purpose. Centerprise is a registered charity!

The article reprinted overleaf shows what these people and their fellow travellers think of Moslems. This newspaper, The Gay Gazette, is being distributed freely in the Borough's Libraries. Your money is paying for this poison. Don't you think it is about time you did something about it?

Opening for the full Spectrum

Ealing Spectrum, the west London organisation running a healthy alliance programme for people living with HIV and AIDS, will hold an introduction day on Saturday 4 November.

The day will run from 1pm to 5pm so that people can find out more about the programme Spectrum offers. They will learn about the organisation's work on improving physical health, relieving mental stress and helping spiritual well-being.

No-one can accuse the Penny Farthing in Hammersmith of being too smoky anymore. Loads of money has been spent on the pub in a revamp, including the installation of a plush new air conditioning system.

The improvements have made a vast difference to the comfort factor at the Penny, especially on those packed cabaret nights when the artistes get through 20 Rothies

So many restaurants can be criticised for keeping the same menu without any changes for months on end.

Now, La Liberté restaurant at the New York Hotel in Philbeach Gardens, Earls Court, is introducing a new menu of French cuisine each and every week!

The perfect way to end your evening at the restaurant must be to strip off and take a giant leap into the steaming jacuzzi on the basement level.

A star-studded gala at the Lyric Hammersmith for the London Light-house on Sunday raised £2,000 for its work with people with HIV and AIDS.

The All Souls event was dedicated to those lost to AIDS and starred, among others, Dawn French, Ruth Rendell and Matthew Kelly.

Hard Muslims top of hate list

Gay students fear them most

Gay London students say Muslim extremists are the main cause of racial and homophobic tension on London university campuses, according to a new study by the NUS, the National Union of Students.

The union initiative, called Campus Watch, has a 24-hour helpline for victims of extremist activity on any British campus. Callers can report abuse of any kind and get information and advice on how to deal with it.

This year is the first anniversary of the project, which was organised in conjunction with the Union of Jewish Students and the anti-fascist magazine Searchlight. Over 400 cases of extremist activity have so far been reported, more than one a day, on average.

NUS president, Jim Murphy, said the project was intended to monitor far-right activity; early posters pictured a skinhead boot boy.

"To our astonishment, most of the calls were about Muslim extremism," said Murphy.

"Of particular concern is a group known as Hizb-ut Tahrir. Homophobia is a central part of its philosophy."

The new figures give the first real indication of the level of extremist activity on British campuses. Until now, most of the evidence has been anecdotal.

Edward Lord, a gay member of the NUS National Executive Committee said: "Hizb-ut Tahrir calls for the banning of our lesbian, gay and bisexual societies and it calls gay sex a crime. We now have to provide as much support as possible to gay students."

"We are organising a campaign to remove these organisations from our campuses."

Most of the incidents have occurred on London campuses. Both the London School of Economics and London Guildhall University have been affected and King's College was closed for the day after police said they couldn't guarantee the safety of the students or staff.

HAPPENINGS FROM THE SM SCENE

Compiled this week by Chris Butler of Gummi and SM Gays

Rubber covered treasures

The Latex Dicks night at GUMMI last Wednesday was wild. And preparing for the event was a hoot too. The photography afternoon for the slides of dicks in rubber was fabulous. At the event we gave away loads of free condoms that I'd picked up earlier in the week.

The box of condoms I collected was massive. I'd driven home and peeked inside. What's this? Never seen those before. 'Sure fit'. 'Slim profile'. As someone crudely put it: "They're for guys with small dicks".

And a jolly good thing they're available, too. They're not designated a strong condom, but if you've a little willy, isn't it better to use an ordinary small condom rather than none at all? And in case you're wondering, I exchanged most (but not all) of the 'Sure fit' for and Expectations are joining forces to provide an even broader range of rubberwear. For 15 years Expectations have produced a range of the (now) standard items of rubber clothing. Detainer's more recent appearance in the marketplace (actually two years already) gave birth to a 'range' that is far from standard, with lots more adventurous stuff for the aficionado. They'll soon be together in one shop: the much-expanded Expectations at 75 Great Eastern Street, EC2. All should be ready for Saturday 4 November.

Hands in - quids in

Always something new at Detainer. Short(ish) black rubber gloves. Lovely texture! £1.50 a pair.

One-offs for perverts

New to the rubber scene is Deviant Bespoke Rubberwear. Deviant: take along your wildest rubber dreams and they'll be created for you as long as it's practical. Bespoke: every item is made to measure, there is no stock range. Rubberwear: solely rubber
