Primary school teacher is disciplined over her secret life of kinky sex sessions

'Miss Whiplash' gets the cane

DOMINATRIX: Faith-Anne Lesbirel has been reprimaded by the General Teacher Council

A PRIMARY school teacher who touted herself as a Miss Whiplash dominatrix has received an official rap on the knuckles from the General Teaching Council.

Faith-Anne Lesbirel, 33, taught children at Simpson school during the day – but at night ran wicked sex sessions and spanking orgies from her home.

Advertising herself as Mistress Saffron, she ran a website called Informed Consent, the council's professional conduct committee heard.

She allegedly tied up her clients and armed herself with riding crops, whips and canes.

In a statement to the committee she said: 'I would research the best quality and best value equipment and a price for the equipment and/or clothing would be agreed by phone and the money would be left in the room when we met.'

'I would also charge a fee for my time when the scenarios took a lot of effort to prepare.'

The teacher even boasted: 'I charge less than other Pro Dommies.'

The committee heard Simpson school's headteacher was "shocked" when she read of Miss Lesbirel's activities in a national newspaper expose in 2008.

The expose also prompted concern among parents, some of whom refused to let the teacher have any contact with their children.

Other parents however were supportive, and praised her work at the school, which was in special measures when she joined.

Miss Lesbirel argued that her dominatrix activities happened in her private life and any reprimand would be a breach of her privacy.

But the committee, which stressed it was not part of its function to make moral judgments, ruled that her website put her identity at risk.

Its concluding report to Miss Lesbirel read: 'We accept there was no deliberate attempt to put your dominatrix activities into the public domain but that you were naive and misguided as to your professional responsibilities and the potential impact of promoting yourself, in the way that you did, on the schools, pupils and profession.'

Issuing a two year Reprimand for unprofessional conduct, the report added: 'The committee has noted your evidence that your involvement in fetish activities does not make you a danger to children.'

Miss Lesbirel, also known as Faith Hamilton, has since left Simpson school.

She has also taken down her dominatrix website.
