

Fifteen things you didn't know about Gerry Gable. Well, almost

1. Mr Gable is a notorious liar.
2. Mr Gable has consistently claimed that his Searchlight Organisation has been bringing "fascists" to book since 1962. In fact, the original Searchlight Association was founded only in 1965 and published a mere four issues of a broadsheet; there is no independent evidence that Gable had anything to do with it.
3. Most of Searchlight's activity consists of harassing "fascists" who are engaged in purely legal activity, holding public and private meetings, for example.
4. Increasingly Mr Gable's organisation has targeted Black and Muslim organisations. Mr Gable particularly hates Black Muslims because like many of his kind he finds the thoughts of Black racial integrity and self-reliance deeply offensive.
5. In 1987, Mr Gable boasted to the Jewish Chronicle that one of his sons was serving in the Israeli army. The following month saw the start of the Intifada; it is not known how many Palestinian children Mr Gable's son murdered. Why not give dad a ring on 0181 550 1805 and ask him?
6. Randy Gerry has been married three times; all three of his wives have been Jewish or of Jewish origin. Not only does Gerry practice racial purity but he doesn't employ Blacks and recently turned down two job applications from Blacks simply because of their race. You dirty hypocrite, Gerry.
7. In 1986, Mr Gable's lies cost a young junior civil servant named Brian Gentleman his job when he was fitted up as a Czech spy.
8. In the same year, Mr Gable cost the BBC a quarter of a million pounds and forced the resignation of the BBC's director general in the notorious Panorama libel case, which was based entirely on his "researches", contrary to his later claims.
9. In the same year his lies cost Private Eye magazine a small fortune when it was sued by a Conservative MP and two others. Mr Gable had accused them of plotting to murder him in Searchlight but wasn't stupid enough to name them; he left that to Private Eye.
10. In recent years Mr Gable's libels have cost a number of radical bookshops a great deal of money, including Housmans who are no longer stocking his magazine.
11. To date, Mr Gable has not paid out any libel damages, nor are there any signs that he will. His health has been deteriorating in direct proportion to the advance of the trial date and he will shortly be taking a holiday in Israel. Permanently. He has already transferred the deeds on his house to a third party and has been quietly winding down his business activities in preparation for the forthcoming disaster. Does his wife know, we wonder?

12. Mr Gable's Jewish mistress, Ruth Levin, recently ran an appeal for funds in Searchlight magazine, ostensibly to fund an anti-racist campaign but in reality to pay Gerry's legal bills and to pay off the mortgage on their love nest in Hebron.

13. Mr Gable is thought to be a secret state "asset", in fact he is nothing more than a dirty little Social Security grass and recently filed an affidavit in the High Court in which he not only admitted this but offered to give evidence against a claimant in criminal proceedings. The claimant in question, now a former claimant, wasn't actually claiming benefit illegally, but why not give Gerry a ring on 0181 550 1805 and ask him about this? And about how many of your unemployed friends he has grassed on in the past?

14. Mr Gable was recently represented by the firm Bindman & Partners in his libel defence, but when they found out where the money for this defence was coming from - the Searchlight Educational Trust - they dropped him like a hot brick.

15. Naughty Gerry has also used money from the Searchlight Educational Trust to pay Nazi "moles", in other words members of the BNP and Combat 18. It was a group of these people who incited the attack on Mushroom Books in January 1994, which cost the shop thousands of pounds.
