1805-1815

The 'dishevelled look' continued and hair by this time was mainly short. Sometimes the short hair was arranged in small curls all over the head and sometimes allowed to remain almost straight and cut in different lengths to form a really ragged look.

IF YOU NEED BUILDERS

you need

ALBION

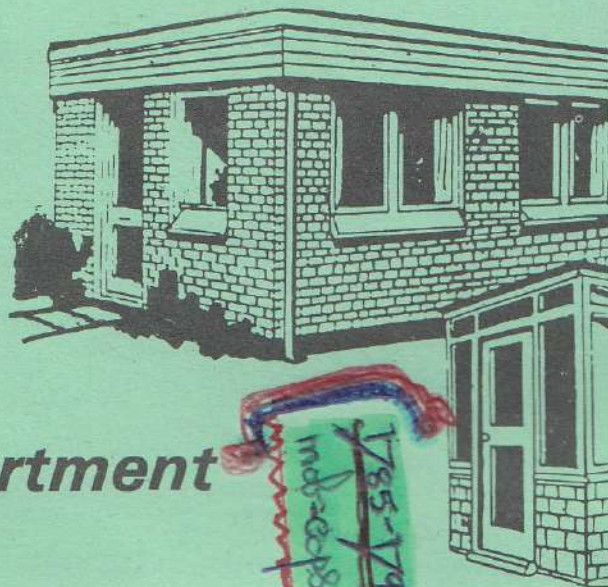

By 1810, however, the 'dishevelled look' had passed and hair was being worn much longer, sometimes in small ringlets hanging down the neck but mostly in a variety of designs.

1795-1805 The 'dishevelled look' was extremely popular during this period and was influenced by France, where new fashions were shared. The man's hair was short and straight.

Face patches were popular by 1810 and were made of velvet or silk and stuck onto the face.
